

Patient Consent Form

I'm using a medical scribe powered by AI (artificial intelligence). It's a software program that listens and records our encounter privately and securely. It takes accurate and highly detailed notes during our visit so I can focus more on our conversation than having to write notes and create referrals etc. It's helping me be more efficient and allows patients to have better care.

By verbally consenting you provide voluntary consent for the recording and processing of your medical conversations to create accurate medical documents for your medical service providers. Your data's privacy and security are prioritized, adhering to local and national privacy laws. You retain the right to withdraw consent at any time, with alternative documentation methods available.

Is that okay with you?
